CROYDON BOY, 10, STRUCK BY ENGINE AS HE CROSSES RAILROAD TRACKS AS SHORT CUT ON VISIT TO GRANDMOTHER

Joseph Dibbs Meets Instant Death Near Croydon Station

SKULL IS FRACTURED
Lad Was Going For Money For Father's Day Gift

Tragedy struck youth of the Bristol area on two successive Saturdays when a ten-year-old Croydon boy was killed Saturday at noon by a drill engine of the P. R. R. east of the Croydon station.

The victim was Joseph Dibbs, oldest of six children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dibbs, 501 Linton avenue, Croydon.

Joseph was on his way to see his grandmother who is housekeeper at the rectory of St. Thomas Aquinas Church, Croydon. It was his second visit of the day. He had previously been to the rectory to aid his grandmother, he doing the little chores to earn his money. It was his custom to carry out the papers and to perform other children's duties. His grandmother Mrs. Estella Minnichbach had promised Joseph enough money to go to the movies twice and also some money for a Father's Day gift for his daddy.

The lad left his home at about 11:30 and met his death as he crossed the railroad tracks at 11:50 Saturday morning. He was a pupil at St. Thomas Aquinas Parochial School.

The drill engine was operated by Engineer Charles E. Potts, 64, of 42 Wall st., Trenton, N. J. The repeated blasts of the engine's warning whistle failed to attract the attention of the youngster.

The tragedy occurred a half-mile east of the passenger station at Croydon at 11:50 a. m. yesterday.

Coroner J. Alfred Rigby of Cornwells Heights said a skull fracture killed the boy instantly. Joseph was the son of Joseph and Anna Dibbs. State Police said they believed the rushing noise of a passing freight train on another track drowned out the sound of the whistle on Potts' drill engine. The Warning Blasts of Whistle Said to Have Been Drowned Out by Blaring of Radio in Car of Victims — Bodies of Victims Tossed a Distance by Engine of Reading Company Train.

CHALFONT, June 19—A Reading Railroad passenger train smashed into a sedan at a country lane grade crossing west of here, yesterday, killing three dairy workers and injuring a fourth.

The dead: Leroy B. Henning, 41, Main street, Doylestown. George Retherford, Jr., 16., of Edison, near Doylestown.

Kenneth Rufe, 16, 147 West street, Doylestown. The injured: William L. Miller, 23, Broad and Union streets, Doylestown, taken to Elm Terrace Hospital, Lansdale, with severe head injuries and possible internal injuries. Hospital authorities described his condition this morning as fair.

Henning was decapitated and his body dismembered and strewn along the tracks for nearly 300 feet.

Retherford was living when an ambulance arrived, but died en route to the Lansdale hospital. The crash hurled his body 60 feet into a cornfield.

The other victim, Rufe, died at the hospital of a compound fracture of the skull at about four p. m., less than six hours after the accident.

Railroad investigators identified Miller as owner of the car and its driver at the time of the accident.

The tragedy occurred at 10:20

a. m., two minutes after the two-car train, carrying 20 passengers, had left the Colmar station, Montgomery county. Chalfont, across the line in Bucks county, was the next stop of the train, a Doylestown local, that had left the Reading Terminal, 12th and Market streets, at 9:25.

Bucks County Coroner J. Alfred Rigby, who issued a certificate of death by accident for Henning, said he had information that the sedan was racing the train to the grade crossing.

The train crew, however, said the sedan was travelling about 10 miles an hour along a dirt road paralleling the tracks just before it swung onto the tracks directly in the path of the local.

At an immediate preliminary hearing before John Gruber, superintendent of the Reading's Philadelphia division, two other crew members testified that the engineer, Louis Silcott, of 124 E. Meehan street, Philadelphia, had given two long and two short warning blasts on the train's whistle as he approached the crossing at 35 miles an hour.

Walter Kerns, whose farm abuts the railroad at the scene, told investigators that he heard the train's warning whistle and a moment later the crash.

Daniel Stevens, of 601 Trinity place, Ambler, trainman of the local's three-man crew, said a blaring radio in the closed sedan apparently drowned out the sound of the train's whistle.

Stevens said that 10 minutes after the accident, the sedan's radio was still bringing in disc jockey music. "A passenger drew my attention to Father's Day was pretty exhausting . . . for Mother.

But the old man starts another year with the best wishes of everyone in the family and several of their IOU's.

He had a wonderful time and now, if he may be excused, he's got to hustle off to mine or mill and make the money to pay for the wonderful gifts.

There was no special message from Justice Douglas, the "Father of the Year" didn't even put out a dissenting opinion.

But the fellow down in Virginia who has 20 children issued a brief statement . . . It just read "Help!"

Now we've had "Mothers Day," "Fathers Day" and "Old Maids Day." . . . Next comes Bachelors Night.

Some say "every day should be fathers day" but he says he couldn't afford it.

LEGISLATING THE SCORE

We didn't grasp the full scope of the rather terrifying power of the United States Senate until we heard that it could produce a good Naval Academy football team. So help us, it's true.

According to testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee one reason for the Army's continued peerless performance on the football field is its ability to get "good material." This is a rather loose term which means in the present instance great, big, rugged guys who wrestle bears before morning chow and can move with the grace and speed of gazelles.

The Army can get such stalwart young men, and the Navy can't, because of a discrepancy in the admittance rulings of the service schools. When West Point hopefuls fail to show up, the superintendent can fill the openings in the plebe corps at his own discretion. A good share of the time lately it is obvious he has been bending an ear to the pleadings of Col. Earl "Red" Blaik, Army coach and mold of great football teams for a whole decade.

The system is something the Navy cannot dabble with, and it wishes it could. Asked pointblank by Senator Saltonstall whether the Navy could turn out winners if Annapolis were given this authority, Navy Capt. W. G. Cooper replied enthusiastically, "Yes, Sir!"

No doubt there will be those whose hearts bleed for the dear dead days when coaches fought it out with the material they had. Anyone who still subscribes to sinian purity on the gridiron (good in theory, but terrible for the scoreboard) is either naive or doesn't care a hang who wins.

There should be no harm in giving the Navy a fair shake in football personnel procurement. It is a grinding schedule its athletic managers arrange for it each year. At least the appointive systems of the two service academies ought to be consistent.

The only foreseeable danger is that some Senator, hard up for campaign material, might lay claim to being the guy who beat Army. This is not as far fetched as some campaign claims that have been uttered.

As for the multibillion dollar cosmetics bill, the girls should be advised that putting the complexion to bed before 2 a. m., is also good.

Words of wisdom from a government bulletin: "Experience in the selection, cooking and serving of food is a valuable asset to a prospective owner of a catering business."

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Two Kansas City Boys

Washington, June 19.

Often these questions are asked: With whom does Mr. Truman most closely consult? Who has the most influence with him? Whom does he see most frequently, now that Mr. Clark Clifford, the gifted young speech writer and architect (with Mr. Leon Keyserling) of the Fair Deal, has followed the illustrious Mr. Thomas Corcoran (Tommy the Clerk) into the highly lucrative legal mazes of Washington and is gleefully raking in the shekels?

The answer to these questions seems to be Mr. William Boyle, the $20,000-a-year chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Personally Mr. Boyle is quite the hardest-boiled, tin-tacked, passionately practical politician seen here in years. An ex-policeman of Kansas City, a product of the Pendergast machine, the chairmanship is a pretty high post for a man of his background and age. Primarily, of course, it is the place for a practical politician. But the point is there has been none in memory quite as completely saturated and concentrated upon machine politics of the strictly old-fashioned type as he. If Mr. Boyle ever thinks of anything other than politics, no one has found it out.

The President and Administration he represents call themselves "liberals." Mr. Boyle uses the word in his ghost-written speeches and committee propaganda, but there is nothing "liberal" in the kind of politics he practices. It is the kind he—and Mr. Truman, too—were brought up on in Kansas City. It is based on jobs, money and deals of one kind and another. In brief, Mr. Boyle plays the game as it was played before he was born. He knows no other way. However, two things stand out. One is that he is personally closer to his President than any of his predecessors have been to theirs. He is a personal portage of Mr. Truman to a degree no one else in Washington is. Brought on as his secretary when he was elected senator, Mr. Truman later made him assistant counsel of the Truman Investigating Committee. Then, after briefly practicing law, Mr. Truman picked him first as assistant and later as chairman of the committee.

Thus, he is the most personal chairman any President ever had. Coming from the same home town, raised in the same political atmosphere, they see alike—and in politics are alike. At any rate Mr. Boyle does see the President when he wants. His personal relations are closer than those of any member of the Cabinet. He sees more of him than any member. He advises him on policies as well as on politics and patronage. This is because with Mr. Boyle every policy is political. He is for the "Fair Deal" not because of conviction but because it is a part of the vote-getting formula his party has so successfully used since it entered upon the great spending era in 1934.

Mr. Boyle has the further distinction of having achieved a closer intimacy and understanding with the labor bosses than either Mr. Farley, Mr. McGrath or the late Mr. Hannegan. In effect, Mr. Boyle has turned the Democratic party over to these labor bosses and is largely running it under their direction. One of his journalistic boosters asserts that Mr. Boyle has "cleared the channels" between the White House and the "political action arms of the three major labor groups." Daily, he sees Jack Kroll, of the CIO-PAC; Joe Keenan, of the AFL-Labor League, and George Harrison, of the Brotherhoods. "Their views on people, programs and issues," we are told, "are then transmitted to the White House at his regular weekly meetings with the President."

And Mr. Boyle "co-operates" with labor in other ways. Last spring he spent days in Ohio trying to "pressure" various Democrats to keep out of the senatorial primaries so that labor could get a strong farm candidate capable of "driving Senator Taft out of public life." Falling in this, he has joined labor in support of Mr. Ferguson with the same objective. In every state he pursues this kind of "co-operation."

If Child Is Afraid of Lightning

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

SOME adults have terrible fears during an ordinary electric storm.

Every parent wishing not to burden her own children with fears of thunderstorms for a lifetime, will work first on herself to overcome these fears. She (or the father) will try to act reasonably. She will know that very, very few persons observing moderate caution are ever injured by lightning.

Simple Precautions

Here are a few simple precautions: not standing near a tree, chimney or any other very high object. Being higher than surrounding things, these objects serve as better lightning attractors. She will avoid the water faucet during the electric storm unless she knows it does not serve as a "ground" for some wire. She also may well avoid using electric devices during the height of the storm. She may feel more secure in the middle of the floor than while leaning against a wall. As a draft of damp air may be a good conductor of electricity, she might well avoid a draft. Lying in a car, except for the danger from things blown upon it, may be a very safe place. Thanks to the rubber tires. A skillful parent may even induce her child to observe caution during an electric storm without arousing fear in him.

It helps any person to feel less fear or any other unhappy emotion if he will get his attention on matters unrelated to the source of the emotion. Indeed, the father or mother bent on protecting the young child from fear during an electric storm will, naturally, try to keep this child interested in other matters during the storm—cuddle, rock and sing to him; tell or read him favorite stories; enjoy with him some of his creative fun with words.

Possible Fears

Such procedure not only reduces possible fears in the youngster but also in the parent. (My bulletin on "Fears: Their Prevention and Correction" may be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper.)

Of course, any person who is jittery and excitable and has many other fears and anxieties is, on this account, more susceptible to fears during a thunderstorm. An adult may do much, therefore, in winter to avoid or overcome fears of thunderstorms in summer. So also can we protect the youngster against fears of electric storms, by helping him feel serene and secure at all times.

Whether your little child has evinced fears of a thunderstorm or not, it is well to be near him with a calm and reassuring presence, when there is a sharp thunder clap; as you know, it's the harmless thunder and not the lightning which frightens him. Even if the young child is asleep during an electric storm you should be near lest he be awakened and terrified by a violent thunder clap. Concerning all fears, an ounce of prevention is worth a ton of cure.

Of course, an occasional child must experience a violent storm such as a tornado, after which his fears of any approaching storm may be very great, indeed. But the hope of his gradual recovery is through the calm and reassuring ways of his parents, however many weeks or months or years these fears may last.

Three From Doylestown Area Killed by Train

it," he said, "so I crawled into the wreckage and shut the thing off."

The accident occurred at a point about one and a half miles west of the Chalfont station, where a little used country dirt road swings sharply across the tracks. Kerns said the lane has no official identification, but is known locally as School road crossing.

Kerns said the lane is seldom used by any motorist other than those living in the immediate area. Silcott said he had been on the run for six years and the death sedan was the first automobile he had ever seen using the crossing, which is protected only by a regulation cross-buck warning standard.

Silcott told investigators that he jammed on the emergency brake, then lifted his foot from the "dead man's control" as the sedan loomed on the tracks just below the front platform of the lead car.

All the car riders were hurled clear of the sedan. Miller and Rutherford were killed. Miller was killed near the wreckage. Rutherford was killed down the tracks by the front trucks of the train. Rutherford was tossed over a fence into Kern's farm when the sedan was ripped asunder by the impact.

Investigators said the train travelled about 300 feet after the collision. Passengers were thrown forward in their seats as Silcott brought the train to a jolting stop.

Some of the riders piled from the train and ran back to the crossing, where Miller, dazed and injured, was reeling. Train riders took him in hand until the help summoned by Kerns arrived.

As help arrived and State Troopers Boleser Wojciechowski, Charles Schweiher and Myer Allenbach came from the Doylestown barracks, Silcott took his train into Doylestown, then returned with his crew to Philadelphia for the preliminary hearing.

Since Rutherford was pronounced dead in Lansdale, Montgomery County Coroner Winslow J. Rushong, of Norristown, took custody of his body.

The four auto riders were returning to Doylestown from Telford, where they worked for the Hoffman Dairies. They apparently took this country lane — a continuation of Walnut street in Colmar — to avoid a detour on Route 202, the main highway between the two points.

Rutherford was a freshman at Doylestown High School, where Rufe was a member of this year's sophomore class and a member of the school's championship rifle team. Henning, a veteran of the Air Force, was married but had no children. Miller, a Navy veteran, also is married.

Making Survey of The Co. Seat Parking Meters

DOYLESTOWN, June 19 — Frank T. Reynolds, chairman of the local merchants' committee, has informed Doylestown Chamber of Commerce that for the past several days a survey has been made of parking meters here, which survey shows that for four days 50 to 60 per cent of the parking space available had not been used.

The survey of 300 meters is being covered every hour by an efficient man, he said, and on the assumption that the average parker stays an hour, it has been found that at least one half the available space has not been used. "This means that 1200 more cars could have parked in Doylestown every day this week and didn't," Mr. Reynolds said. "Whether this is conclusive that parkers object to the meters, we can't say."

A check, he said, is also being made of the working condition of the meters, and 20 to 50 percent had been found to be inaccurate. Concerning the parking lot situation, he reported William Taylor had made a large map of the shopping area, showing several possible sites.

The committee, he said, had also checked State highway traffic laws and found that boroughs do have authority within the borough, and the state does not take over unless given permission by the borough to place lights, blockades or regulate traffic.

M. P. Dayhoff, Jr., Takes Philadelphia As Bride

PHILADELPHIA, June 19 — A resident of this city, Miss Katherine Marie Duerr, took the vows on Saturday afternoon which united her in marriage to Mr. Morris Paul Dayhoff, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Dayhoff, Bath road, Bristol township. A large number of relatives and friends were in attendance at the nuptial ceremony solemnized in St. James Lutheran Church at two o'clock, at which the Rev. J. L. Schantz officiated. Bouquets of mixed flowers, also cymbonians, decked the edifice.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gottlieb Duerr, 1440 Fanshawe street, was given in marriage by her father. She looked attractive in a gown of white marquisette, which featured apron effect in lace. The long sleeves were lace-trimmed, and the neck-line close-fitting. The full skirt swept to a long train. Her veil was finger-tip in length, this falling from a tiara of orange blossoms and pearls. White roses formed her bouquet, with a white orchid at the center.

Miss Lois Dayhoff, Bristol township, a sister of the bridegroom, attended the bride as maid of honor, she being costumed in white marquisette over orchid; the gowns of the bridesmaids, the Misses Rita Volpe and Mabel Willis, this city, being white marquisette over nile green. The gowns were cut with mandarin necklines, cape sleeves, form-fitting bodices and bouffant skirts. Sashes and picture hats were in color tones matching their pastel slips. Each of the trio carried a colonial bouquet of mixed flowers. Darlene Duerr, Philadelphia, a niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore pink organdy, with head-dress of pink flowers, and carried a basket of mixed blossoms.

Named as best man was Mr. Lawrence Duerr, a brother of the bride; with Messrs. James King and William Waldron, Bristol township, being ushers.

Vocal numbers, including "The Lord's Prayer," "Always" and "Because," were by Mr. W. Traves, this city, with Mr. Gordon presiding at the organ console.

There were place covers for 70 at the reception held in Cannstatter hall, Academy road and Frankford avenue, at 4:30 o'clock.

Mr. Dayhoff and bride are participating in a motor trip through some of the southern states. For the journey Mrs. Dayhoff wore a tan marquisette dress, white picture hat and accessories, and the orchid from her bouquet. Their place of residence will be an apartment on Bath road, Bristol township.

Mrs. Duerr, mother of the bride, was attired at the ceremony in dusty pink crepe which had bodice of lace, pink hat and slippers, white gloves, and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Dayhoff, mother of the bridegroom, wore a blue semi-sheer dress, white accessories, and an orchid.

Mr. Dayhoff is employed by Badenhaupt Corp., Cornwells Heights. To his attendants he gave the holders. The young women were presented with bracelets set with their birthstones, these being gifts from the former Miss Duerr.

Need Re-Born Faith In American "Way"

Tower will be a lasting monument to faith in America, Mrs. Patton said.

"If America is to lead the way for democratic nations in upholding freedom and liberty, it must demonstrate its strong faith in democracy. We cannot successfully meet a cold war if we have another cold war going on within our own United States."

"Our faith must be strong. It must be instilled into the hearts of our young Americans by patriotic education. We must show others in our daily lives that we believe in America and have confidence in our form of Government. Patriotism does not have to be kept in a closet and brought out only on the Fourth of July."

The original cornerstone for the tower was laid by Mrs. William H. Pouch of New York City, then President General, in 1941. In today's ceremony an additional sealed box containing added records was placed beside the first box and the stone was sealed by Mrs. Pouch and Mrs. Patton.

A large group of DAR officers attended the ceremony. A special delegation came from Washington headquarters. The first part of the exercises was held in the Washington Memorial Chapel where Doctor John Robbins Hart, Rector of the Chapel and Mrs. Thomas Henry Lee of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania State Regent, gave welcoming addresses. The response was by Mrs. Loren Edgar Rex of Wichita, Kansas, First Vice President General. The project to build the Memorial Bell Tower was conceived during the administration of Mrs. Pouch and today she told how the idea developed into a national project.

The great carillon of the chapel has been housed in a wooden structure which has been deemed to be unsafe. The Memorial Bell Tower will be constructed of steel and stone and will rise to a height of 95 feet. Among its memorials will be a honor roll containing the names of soldiers of the Revolutionary War and of World War I and World War II. Pointing out that the bells of the carillon will ring out at Valley Forge every day in the year, Mrs. Patton added:

"The bells in the tower will proclaim faith in America. Erection of this tower shows our faith in America, an enduring faith that what our forefathers won for liberty loving people will be preserved. That is why I say this tower will be a pillar of faith in our country, imparting that faith to all who came here and to all who hear the bells."

Mrs. Patton praised the untiring efforts of those in charge of the

300 Attend Wedding Reception On Sunday

nile green, the following bridesmaids were attired in yellow: the Misses Elizabeth DeGregorio, 925 Mansion street; Esther Rosato, Philadelphia; and Jennie Farruglio, 1000 North 10th street, sister of the bride. The flower girl, Roseann Marino, Farruglio avenue, niece of the bride, wore white organza over yellow satin, the gown being floor length. This had detachable sleeves. Fresh flowers formed the wreath for her head, (this having a yellow bow at the back); and filled a basket which she carried. Her escort was little Nicholas Stampone, Phila., cousin of the bridegroom.

For best man Mr. Stampone selected Mr. Leonard Petrillo, Philadelphia; and as ushers Messrs. Peter Stampone, brother of the bridegroom, and Frank Tripello, Phila.; and Joseph Farruglio, Jr., Bristol, brother of the bride.

For attendance at the wedding Mrs. Farruglio wore a light green dress, with lace bodice, this having a black and green sequin motif. Accessories were white. Mrs. Stampone, mother of the bridegroom, chose a black dress with pink and black lace bodice, and accessories were white. Corsages for the two were of lavender orchids.

The dinner was served at Parkway Inn at four o'clock; and the reception was held in Mutual Aid hall. The newlyweds are passing a week in the Pocono mountains. For the trip the bride wore a light tan suit, white slippers and gloves, pink hat, a mink neckpiece, and orchids from her bridal bouquet. The two will reside at 1717 Farruglio avenue. The bride, a graduate of Bristol high school, and of Marjorie School of Beauty Culture, Phila., is employed by Farruglio's Express. Her husband is an employee of United Engineering Construction Co., Phila.

To her attendants the bride presented baby pearl necklaces and bracelets; and Mr. Stampone gave the men in the bridal party cigarette lighters.

Rev. Sargis Officiates At Wedding in Eddington

EDDINGTON, June 19 — At the hour of three on Saturday in Eddington Presbyterian Church, Miss Vera Kitchenman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kitchenman, Croydon, was united in matrimony to Mr. William W. K. Hill, Philadelphia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hill, of Andalusia. The Rev. Arthur D. Sargis officiated at the double ring ceremony.

White dotted marquisette was the choice of the bride, who was given in marriage by her father. A cape sleeve jacket was worn over the strapless gown which also featured a ballerina skirt. A calotte of white dotted swiss, white linen slippers and long white gloves completed the costume. White satin streamers were attached to an old-fashioned bouquet of white carnations, and sweet peas, with lavender orchid center.

A sister of the bride, Mrs. Edward Stanski, Burlington, N. J., was matron of honor in a model of aqua blue marquisette fashioned with a V neckline, fitted bodice, stand-up roll collar, cap sleeves and ballerina skirt. A matching picture hat, white slippers and gloves were also worn. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of pink carnations and sweet peas with aqua streamers attached.

A brother of the bridegroom, Mr.

Louis Hill, Philadelphia, served as best man.

Mrs. Gertrude Kirk, Andalusia, rendered organ selections. Mrs. Otto Grupp, Jr., sang, "O, Perfect Love," "I Love You Truly," and during the ceremony "The Lord's Prayer."

A two-piece dress of aqua tone linen, white hat and accessories were choice of Mrs. Kitchenman, mother of the bride. She wore a corsage of yellow carnations. Mrs. Hill, mother of the bridegroom, selected a pink dress, brown hat and matching accessories. A corsage of yellow carnations was worn.

The former Miss Kitchenman presented a set of gold earrings with matching necklace to her matron of honor. Mr. Hill's gift to the bride was a wallet and key case. A dinner was served to members of the immediate families at Becker Farms Inn. Mrs. Hill is employed at Cornwells office of the Bell Telephone Co. Mr. Hill is employed in Philadelphia.

All Saints Church Is Scene Of Carvin-Lawrence Nuptials

TORRESDALE, June 19 — Attended by a trio of young women, and given in marriage by her father, Miss Virginia Louise Lawrence became the bride of Mr. Thomas H. Carvin, son of Mr. Howard Wilson, Frankford, at a ceremony in All Saints Episcopal Church, here, at the hour of four on Saturday. The officiating clergyman was the rector, the Rev. Percy J. Brown. A large company of relatives and friends assembled in the edifice which was attractive with white roses and ferns, to witness the ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lawrence, Jr., Orchard Lane, to the resident of Castor avenue, Frankford.

Mrs. Tegeler provided accompaniment for Miss Eileen Christian, whose vocal solo were: "At Dawning," "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer," the latter sung during the ceremony.

Costumes of marquisette and lace, featuring detachable shoulder-length lace capes, were worn by the maid of honor, Miss Barbara Noll, attired in aqua; and the bridesmaids, the Misses Barbara Cope and Janice Dewees, wearing orchid tone. They wore lace tiaras studded with rhinestones.

The bridal gown was of imported Chantilly lace over satin and net, entrain. It had an illusion yoke, embroidered at the neckline with sequins and pearls. A cap decorated with pearls held her finger-tip veil. Men of the bridal party included Mr. James Leonard, best man; and Mr. Milton Law and Mr. Ernest Lawrence, 34, ushers.

The flower girl was Susan Stelzer, cousin of the bridegroom, who wore white organza over peach taffeta, with floral wreath in her hair.

The mother of the bride, at the nuptial ceremony, wore azure blue lace and crepe, with accessories in the same color. Mrs. Wilson was costumed in toast brown lace and accessories to match.

One hundred guests were invited to the reception at the Lawrence residence. Leaving for the Pocono mountains for a short stay, the bride wore a red suit with navy blue

ST. ANN'S CLINGS TO FIRST PLACE IN LEAGUE LEAD

St. Ann's A. A. held on to its slight margin on first place in the Trenton Industrial League by beating the Trenton Warriors, 6-4, yesterday afternoon on Memorial Park field. The "Saints" and Micharski will battle it out this evening on Memorial field for the top rung of ladder. Game will begin at six o'clock.

Pine relief hurling by Paul Cervellero aided the St. Ann's team to the triumph. Cervellero replaced Stan Stevenson in the fourth inning after the latter had been rocked by three doubles and a triple. Cervellero allowed three hits and blanked the Warriors the remainder of the fray.

In the meantime, St. Ann's had driven John Pinkney, Warriors' starting hurler in the last half of the fourth and took the lead by scoring four markers. This made Cervellero the winning moundman. The Warriors were also given some excellent relief pitching by Jess Thompson who set down the Bristolians without a run in the last four innings and also gave up a trio of hits.

The visiting team outthrew the winners, 9-8, with Fred Barbetta and "Chick" Claiella getting two hits each for the Wood Streeters. Moreland had two for two and Williams two for four to lead the Trenton team.

The Bristol team took advantage of six mis-slips by the Warriors to aid in the scoring as in the big fourth, it made but two hits to score the quartet of markers.

CROYDON CAPTURES SECOND VICTORY

Croydon A. C. won its second straight game of the Bristol Youth League yesterday with a 4-1 win over Harriman. In the other Youth League contest, Newportville trimmed the Bristol Terrace nine, 12-2.

"Jimmy" Morrell hurled the Croydonites to their second triumph, holding Harriman to five hits. The Harriman pitcher, Bob Rigby also allowed five safe blows.

Rigby gave up the three winning runs in the final inning. There was a walk to Morrell, a fielder's choice, a hit by Joe Dominick and a costly error in the big frame.

"Bob" Jones was the big run in the 15-hit attack of Newportville as he rapped out a pair of triples and two singles in four times up. Nick Schmitt held the Terrace team to eight scattered hits. George Ireland and Joe Muth hurried for the losers.

VOLTZ LOSES TO BUSTLETON BY THE CLOSE SCORE OF 5-4

BUSTLETON, June 19 — The Voltz-Texaco team lost to Bustleton, 5-4, in a well-played Tri-County League game here yesterday. The winners had seven hits to the Voltz-men's five but three errors hurt the Bristol boys.

"Bill" Cochran had two of the Voltz hits. His final hit, a single in the ninth got him around to third as the tying run but Weakley and Killian failed to deliver.

Dave Weakley hurried for the losing team with Charlie Mengel pitching for Bustleton. Weakley hit a home run in the seventh inning.
